

Emergency First Response Instructor

Teach CPR and first aid to others so they can be prepared for an emergency.

CPR and first aid are important skills that are in high demand. As an Emergency First Response Instructor, you can teach these skills to anyone.

What You Learn

Gain experience in how to structure learning, the requirements of performance-based training and your role as the instructor in the learning environment for teaching CPR and first aid.

You also learn how to motivate students, evaluate student knowledge, present course content effectively, become proficient in developing students' hands-on skills practice sessions, and are taught how to present an effective scenario-based learning experience.

What You Can Teach

Learn how to conduct the Emergency First Response Primary Care (CPR) and Emergency First Response Secondary Care (first aid) courses.

You also learn to conduct the recommended Automated External Defibrillator (AED), emergency oxygen and conscious choking management skills.

Learning Materials You Need

We provide you with the EFR Instructor manual and exams required to teach EFR. If you intend to be teaching EFR courses in your local area, you may want to invest in the EFR Instructor Start-up kit (product no. 60215) which includes a complete set of instructional and student materials for each of the EFR courses, as well as bandage packs, marketing resources, and an EFR duffel bag.

Prerequisites

- You must have successfully completed a sanctioned course in adult and child/infant CPR and basic first aid within the past 24 months.
- Be at least 18 years old

The Emergency First Response Instructor Course costs £350 and can be completed in one full day or over two sessions. It is now a requirement that all PADI Instructor Candidates are an EFR Instructor before qualifying as Instructors.
